The Homecoming Project Transitional Care Program

Hospital-to-home transitional care services to ensure a safe and successful transition to home.

What is the Homecoming Project?

The Homecoming Project is a hospital-to-home service that bridges the gap between a hospital discharge and a strong recovery. We provide care management and services after a patient returns home to help stabilize and achieve optimal recovery.

How does the program work?

The St Joseph's Medical Center Homecoming Coordinator will visit the patient in the hospital and then the Transitional Care Specialist will visit the patient at home after discharge. The Transitional Care Specialist will help the patient secure arrangements to his/her medical appointments ensure medication delivery and link the patient with resources related to health and well-being.

Who is Eligible?

St. Joseph's Medical Center patients who are ready for discharge and will be returning to their home are eligible for the program. The free services are offered regardless of income. Homecoming clients may feel isolated, need additional support systems and resources and have other needs that place them at risk of readmission.
